THE COURT: Okay. Well, I think at the risk of being precipitous, and in the interest of the shortness of life and moving the case along, I'm prepared to rule. I may write on this, but I may not, so my oral recitation here will be the decision of the Court.

I think reasonable people could differ as to the method of valuation under Section 722 for redemption of property. But I think the weight of authority supports what Judge Ninfo did in his decision of November 14th, that the standard for determining the value for redemption should be the so-called wholesale value.

Neither Judge Ninfo nor the Court is going to state what the value is because I think the parties have stipulated that. As long as the Court decides the method, you all can figure the numbers.

This Court has relied, as did Judge Ninfo, on the legislative history, and the Court has carefully reviewed the cases cited by Judge Ninfo, especially at page three of his decision, In re: Donley. All the cases that he cited there, the Weathington case especially, is a Sixth Circuit decision decided in 2000, and all the cases that he cited and I've referenced here are post-Rash decisions. That is, Associates Commercial Corp versus Rash, decision of the United States Supreme Court decided in 1997, a Chapter 13 case.

11:11 AM 1 Because Rash did deal with a different issue, I'm not
2 convinced that Rash requires that this Court adopt a replacement
3 value for the debtor who seeks to redeem under Section 722.

4 Were I a legislator, which thankfully I'm not, I can
11:11 AM 5 see a mechanism for treating Chapter 13s and Chapter 7s in this
6 context the same. I'm not confident enough that that's what a
7 legislator would do or that's what I should do in this posture.

8 As Judge Ninfo pointed out, and I think other courts
9 have pointed out, there is a difference with a distinction or 11:12 AM 10 maybe a distinction with a difference between what Rash was 11 dealing with and what we're dealing with in this Section 722
12 scenario.

13 My standard of review here is de novo since it's a
14 legal matter, and I am persuaded considering both 722, the 11:12 AM 15 legislative history, and Section 506(a) which attempts to define 16 valuation.

17 I think the method chosen by Judge Ninfo is proper and 18 appropriate, it accurately reflects what the statute provides for 19 and, therefore, I choose to affirm him and his decision. That's 11:13 AM 20 all I will say at this point.

21 Mr. Relin, if you could assist the Court by
22 preparing -- not a decision obviously, but just a short order
23 indicating my affirmance of Judge Ninfo's decision, and indicate
24 that the Court's comments here on the record, this 6th day of 11:13 AM 25 April, should be deemed incorporated by reference as to the 11:13 AM 1 reasoning behind the Court's decision.

2 If I decide to write further for whatever purpose, for
3 history, I'll do that, but at this point I think you have my
4 decision and can move on with the case.

11:13 AM 5 MR. RELIN: Thank you, Your Honor.

6 THE COURT: Can I get that in a week?

7 MR. RELIN: Sure.

8 THE COURT: Okay, thank you.

9 (WHEREUPON, the proceedings adjourned at 11:14 a.m.)
